Collection Agency to Raise Money for Cancer Charity

Five Percent of New Business in October will go to American Cancer Society and Employees will Take Part in Making Strides in Three Cities

Marlborough, MA: September 14, 2009; American Profit Recovery, a collection agency based in Michigan, Massachusetts and North Carolina will take on the fight against cancer this month. They will put in place a number of programs to help raise money and awareness for the American Cancer Society.

American Profit Recovery will take part in a number of industry trade shows during the month of October. At these shows, they will donate five percent of the proceeds of all new orders and reorders to the American Cancer Society (ACS.) The collection agency will also donate five percent of the proceeds of other new orders and renewals from existing customers during the month of October as well.

Setting them apart from many other collection agencies, American Profit Recovery will put teams in three Making Strides Against Breast Cancer walks in three cities, Boston, Detroit and Charlotte. This will be the second year in which the company has made this effort. In all over 30 employers will take part and raise money.

“There are many charities and causes we could align ourselves with but none more important than the fight against cancer,” stated Jeff DiMatteo, partner at American Profit Recovery. “We have had an overwhelming response from our team here that this is the right thing to do and we know our team whether walking or promoting our services will keep this cause in their thoughts as we help raise money.”
