Collection Agency Adopts Families for the Holidays American Profit Recovery Employees Promote the Spirit of Giving by Fulfilling Lists for Those in Need

Marlborough, Mass. – American Profit Recovery, a collection agency based in Michigan, Massachusetts and North Carolina will spread some holiday cheer as they shop for families in need. Recently, APR and their team members made a commitment to participate in the Adopt-a-Family program for the second consecutive year. They made their debut in the program in 2009 after a team member suggested the idea.

APR's Michigan and Massachusetts employees found several families in their communities who can use a little help this holiday season. The collection agency obtained a list with effects each family needs to help them enjoy a special holiday. APR employees will fulfill items on the lists in two different ways: they may pay for casual dress days in the office or they can choose ornaments from a giving tree in either office which feature gifts needed for purchase. Gift prices range from $5 to $50 enabling employees to participate at the level of their choosing. APR employees will deliver the gifts one week prior to Christmas to the adopted families.

“American Profit Recovery is proud to have employees who eagerly support our mission to be charitable and to help those in need lead better lives,” said Jeff DiMatteo, partner at American Profit Recovery. “We enjoy the Adopt-A-Family program because it is a hands-on project that promotes the giving spirit of the holidays and gets our team out in the community.”

American Profit Recovery continues making an impact in their communities through charitable endeavors. APR and their employees also participate in the Making Strides for Breast Cancer Walk each year, the PLANET Day of Service on Earth Day and additional educational and charitable events each year that donate funds to helping others.
